Mumps vaccine re-launched

Didsbury releases shots schedule

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

The Calgary Health Region (CHR) has announced the re-launch of an enhanced mumps vaccination program.

It has been determined that two dates will be made available for Didsbury residents to make appointments and receive their vaccination.

Sandy Phillips, manager of public health for Didsbury-Airdrie-Strathmore says May 23 and June 3 are the times-lots for the free shots at the Didsbury Health Unit.

"I am quite excited that we have been able to offer this vaccine for people in Didsbury," she said, adding that more dates are expected to be added.

Residents of Carstairs and Cremona are also encouraged to call for an appointment if they fall into the targeted age category.

According to CHR spokesperson Leanne Dohy, the campaign is aimed at those born between the years 1980 and 1990.

"They have been identified as being susceptible, so it's sort of a catch-up program," she said.

"They are identified as a priority group as there is an increased rate of transmission at that age. More close contact."

The CHR says most Albertans born between 1980 and 1990 received only a single dose of mumps-containing vaccine while infants.

"At the time they were young, the thinking was that one dose was enough and then you find out that one dose wasn't enough," says Dohy.

As a result, a second dose of vaccine is now recommended for satisfactory protection.

The vaccine program was stopped in December when an unexpected number of allergic reactions were found among CHR residents in December.

In response, the Public Health Agency of Canada completed an investigation into the vaccine, later determining it to be safe.

The vaccine was released from quarantine in April, and initially re-released in Lethbridge to address an area outbreak.

"It was more urgent that it start there first," said Dohy.

To that end, the number of mumps cases has decreased to only two reported incidents in April. In contrast, the CHR experienced 161 cases of mumps from Sept 2007 to April 30 of this year.

"We've seen the number drop off quite dramatically," said Dohy, adding that the additional time to organize the campaign proved helpful.

"We've had some time to gear up. The logistics of planning a large vaccine program are pretty complicated, so it's preferable to have some time to do some planning."

The program will be in effect until August 29.

Those interested in making an appointment are encouraged to call 335-7292.

Opinion

Editorial Public relations fight ongoing for Alberta

BY DAN SINGLETON
Didsbury Review

The Stelmach government has announced that its newly implemented emission reduction plans are working well, helping to clean up the province while at the same time keeping the powerhouse oil and gas industry humming along nicely.

As the county's largest polluter, Alberta is always being scrutinized by environmental watchdogs to see if the provincial government really is prepared to do enough to fight climate change.

"Our action is resulting in real benefits for Alberta," said Premier Ed Stelmach. "We are encouraging the creation of innovative low-carbon technology in this province and our offset system is encouraging emission reductions in other sectors ranging from farming to alternative energy producers."

Under the Stelmach plan, sands facilities, coal-fired power plants and others met a requirement to reduce the intensity of their greenhouse gas emissions by 12 per cent. Companies had until March 31, 2008 to comply with the Alberta law.

The province gave companies three options for meeting the reduction: improve the energy efficiency of their operations, buy carbon credits in the Alberta-based offset system or pay $15 into the Climate Change and Emissions Management Fund for every tonne over their reduction target.

The province says early results show that companies made more than 2.5 million tonnes of reductions through operational changes and practices, including through better use and re-use of energy and by investing in verified offsets created by other Alberta projects.

Companies also chose to pay approximately $40 million into the Climate Change and Emissions Management Fund, which the province says will be invested in projects and technology to reduce greenhouse gas emissions.

The reduction is equivalent to taking 550,000 vehicles off the road.

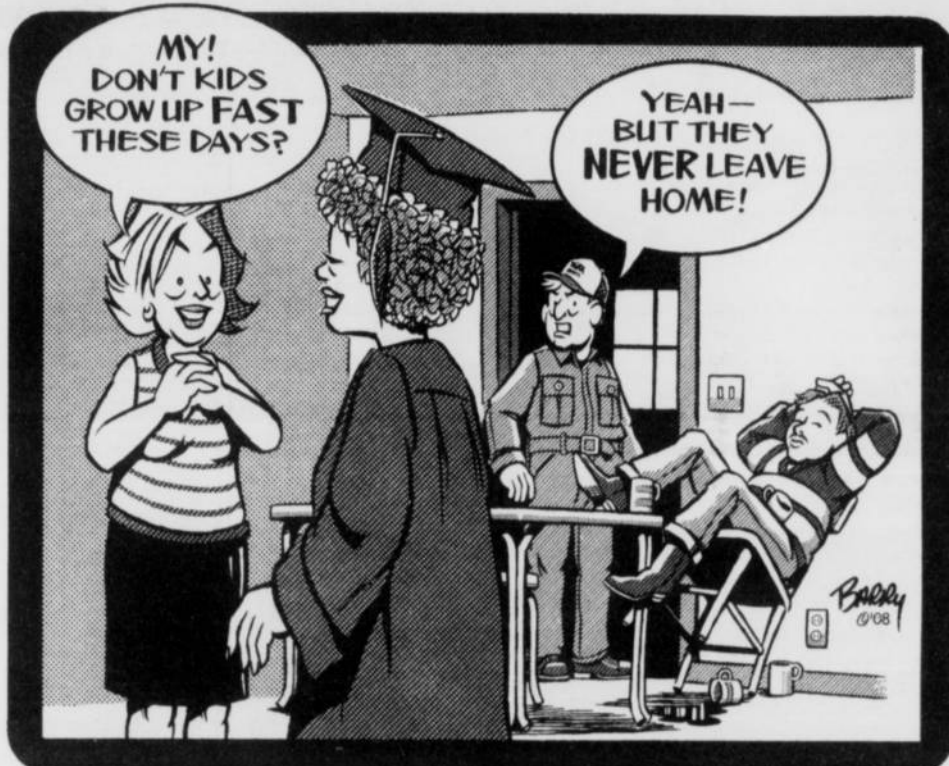

Such massive reductions in emissions should be applauded by everyone concerned with climate change and the impact of pollution on the well-being of ordinary citizens.

Yet any gains on the public relations front that the newly announced reduction figures may have garnered for Alberta have been more than offset by the Stelmach government's grossly inept handling of the recent duck kill disaster at Fort McMurray.

"I would like the Minister of International Affairs to explain how he could promote his government as being environmentally responsible when 500 birds were stuck in a tailings pond so toxic that 99 per cent of water fowl that lands in one dies," says Liberal leaders Kevin Taft.

Nobody is talking about the massive emission reductions Alberta has made over the past year. Instead they are talking about dead ducks and how the Stelmach government would rather hide photos of the carnage than come clean with the public.

But then again, does anyone really believe the Stelmach Tories care one way or another about what people think about them?

BY JOYCE
HOEY

In his book 'A Complaint-free World', Pastor Will Bowen put forward this premise: we all complain far too much. He proposed a challenge to his congregation. They were invited to join him in a trial to achieve 21 days without complaining. Each participant was issued a free purple bracelet.

The project was organized by Bowen and his secretary, Marcia. Purple was chosen simply because it wasn't yet in use in the prevalent commemorative rubber bracelets. The distributor only had purple bracelets with the logo "spirit", a leftover from a local high school's program. Bowen decided to go with it, calling his endeavour "the spirit of change".

He explained the challenge. Each time a participant vocalized a complaint, he was required to remove his bracelet to the opposite wrist and begin again. There was no grace period, other than a complaint that did not leave the mouth remained unheard and uncounted.

Bowen proposed the 21-day period as he had read this is the time required to form a new habit. How difficult could it be? He considered himself an optimistic, upbeat person. He reported that by the end of the first day, his wrists were sore from switching that lovely purple bracelet from right to left, again and again. After one week, his personal best was switching only five times a day, and then he slid back to multiple times yet again.

He was stunned to realize he complained constantly. He spent time with complainers and fed off them. Bowen became determined to do better. He began to choose his companions carefully. He spent more time in thought before vocalizing. After a month into his program he achieved three successive complaint-free days.

Bowen invited the Kansas City Star newspaper to feature his challenge. His church would provide free bracelets to all who wished to join him. His secretary had reordered the original 500 several times. She now ordered 9,000. The church set up a website especially for the request and shipping of the purple bracelets. Other papers picked up the story and eventually Bowen's challenge was covered on both the Today Show and the Oprah Winfrey Show. By the writing of his book, over 6 million had accepted the challenge.

Bowen has received a constant flow of e-mails. Most participants report an average of four to eight months to achieve their goal. At least one confessed to 18 months. Some gave up altogether. Many wore out several bracelets and had to order more. The majority realized just how destructive their constant stream of complaints had been. They began to hear what they were actually saying. Some reported putting hand-over-mouth or stopping mid-sentence. Eventually, into the silences came expressions of gratitude and encouragement.

Bowen shared his insight gained from this challenge to himself. He said try and imagine a world without the "ear pollution" of complaints. The first step toward progress is dissatisfaction, but don't stay there. Focus on what you want to see in your life, not on what you don't.

Marcia, the church secretary said, "Before I let the words out, I think about them and set to achieve something positive with what I say."

Another successful participant, Jack Ring, stated, "Keeping our complaints quiet can be compared to the silence of meditation; it's easier to hear God talk to us."

Bowen accepts that there are times when it is appropriate to speak to an issue but stresses the importance of doing so in a positive manner. He stated that the logo, "spirit" means breath and exhorts each of us to take a breath before we speak and consider what we are about to say.

Trailer Parking

Well, the days are longer and the weather is getting nicer! That means camping season is here! I just want to remind everyone that their trailers and boats cannot be left on the street unattached to a vehicle. The complaints have already started rolling in and I wanted to let everyone know that trailers on the street decrease site lines at intersections and narrow our streets. So please be courteous to your neighbors and find off street parking for your trailer when not in use. It is acceptable to load your trailer while parked on the street attached to a vehicle but please try and limit the time that it is there. Have an excellent and safe camping season.

Family eyes Ethiopian adoption

Fundraising event planned

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

Sheree Andrews of Didsbury, was painting an Ethiopian gentleman's face at one of the many events she services, when the two broke into conversation.

SHEREE ANDREWS

"My husband and I have wanted to adopt for several years," said Andrews, who presently has three children.

The man told Andrews, that she should take her craft overseas and paint faces in Ethiopia.

Andrews pauses briefly before responding, "I couldn't do that, because I'd want to come home with all the orphans."

Now the Andrews family is in the process of finalizing an adoption of two Ethiopian children and is hosting a fundraising event to help make that happen.

The Andrews family, who are involved in clown entertainment, spoke to friends in their line of work about the fundraiser they had in mind.

"A bunch of them volunteered to come up, and they are fantastic, amazing entertainers," she said.

The fundraiser will consist of two shows, one at 1 p.m. and the other at 2 p.m.

at the Chinook Winds Church in Didsbury on May 17.

In addition, the event will include a garage sale that Andrews says has received significant support, the chance for locals to experience an Ethiopian meal, and a carnival that will run from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Andrews says, if her family is unsuccessful at adopting, the money raised from the event will go towards a project that her church sponsors in Ethiopia.

What you need to know about changes to health care premiums

Alberta is eliminating health care premiums as of January 2009. Until then Albertans register and pay the same way.

Until January 1, 2009:

- All Albertans are responsible to pay premiums unless they qualify for premium assistance, government-sponsored income support programs, or are senior citizens.
- Employers and benefit administrators who register and pay premiums on behalf of their employees will continue to do so.
- Alberta Health and Wellness will continue to pursue collections from those who fail to pay premiums.
- Contributors to Alberta Blue Cross or other supplementary insurance plans that provide prescription drug, dental, and other extended coverage, will still pay those premiums, as they have not been eliminated.
- New Albertans must register for the Alberta Health Care Insurance Plan within three months of their arrival.

Cremona rancher inducted into Hall of Fame

BY MARK LAYCOCK
Didsbury Review

The last thing on Lawrence Hutchison's mind when he saddled up on the back of a 1,000 pound raging bull, was that it could be the last eight seconds of his life.

Rather, his concern was making sure his footing was secured, that he could see the direction the beast was flailing, and that he had a feel for how the bull was moving.

"You've got to grit your teeth and think it'll never end," he warned, as he laid back in a large rocking chair puffing on a black pipe in the kitchen of his rustic ranch.

And whatever you do, don't listen for that whistle, because it'll never come he says.

"It's a long way from six to eight seconds, but not one to six," he says. "If you wait for that whistle... well, that's what separates the good (riders) from the mediocre."

Hutchison has been selected to join the ranks of Canada's greatest cowboys when he travels to Kennedy, Sask. this month to be inducted into the Canadian Professional Rodeo Hall of Fame.

The 70-year-old hasn't challenged a bull since 1975, and has since opted to maintain a quiet life with his wife on their ranch west of Cremona.

Mementos of rodeos past and bridles decorate the walls as western themed pictures litter the kitchen and clay tile paintings fortify the baseboards of his home - western art of his own creation.

In the living room, Lawrence's winning saddles sit next to each other in unison.

Lawrence sat on his first bull in 1955 at the Medicine Hat Rodeo when he was only 16. He made the eight seconds and took home the handsome sum of $60.

"If I could ride a bull and make some money I figured I'd do some more," he says. "I never did practice at home, I had to learn on the road."

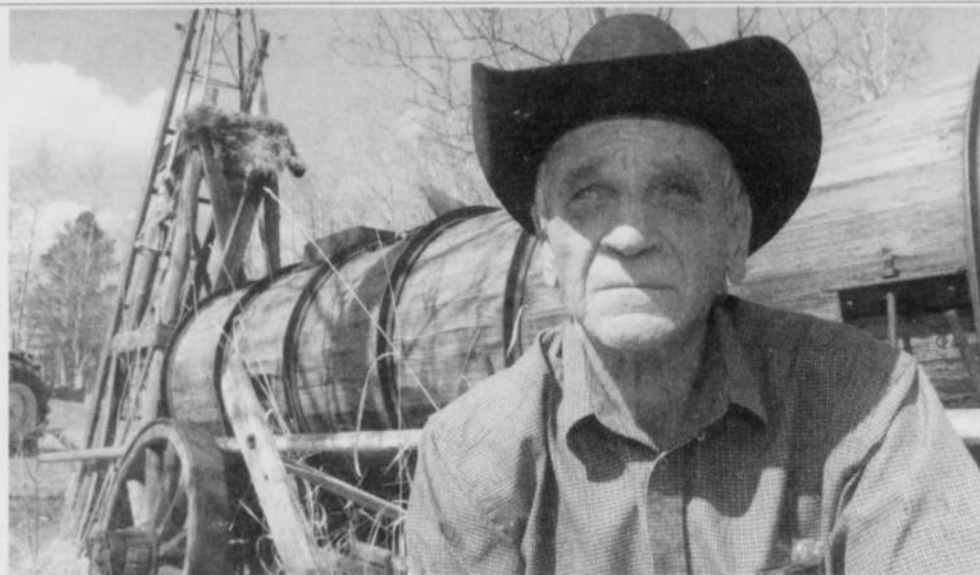

Two years later in 1957, he became the youngest competitor to win the Canadian Finals Bull Riding at 18 - a record title he still holds today.

He says he's proud of the standing, but admits it's a record that will be broken eventually.

"Records are made to be broken, it just hasn't been broken yet."

Hall of Fame inductees are chosen based on criteria revolving around a cowboy's prior accomplishments, longevity and that they have won a Canadian championship.

Each year, seven individ-

WINNING BUCK - Former Cremona bull rider Lawrence Hutchison is being inducted into the Canadian Professional Rodeo Hall of Fame in October.

uals are selected from a list of nominees and are later voted on.

"The purpose is to acknowledge these competitors and builders and animals and have a place where people can go to look at pictures and memorabilia," says Lester Gurnett of the Hall of Fame.

Even though he was young, Lawrence says riding bulls wasn't as cumbersome as some might imagine. If he could win, he thought, then the bulls weren't too bad.

Throughout his time riding, he never dared go near a saddle bronc though. He says at the time, some figured riding bulls was more dangerous because riders could get stuck in the stirrups, "but that's not true" he says.

However when he was little, horses proved to be a best friend, serving as his only mode of transportation and from school.

"But that's a long time ago," he snickered.

In 1962, Lawrence took the Canadian Finals once again. That same year he participated in the National Finals Rodeo in Los Angeles and Oklahoma and walked away with some more cash.

In all, he collected seven saddles throughout his time riding. He placed in the top ten at the National Finals Rodeo in 1963 and 1966, and was a four-time circuit champion in the central and southern Alberta circuits.

He says his greatest achievement was placing first in the Denver Rodeo when he was only 25, taking in $2,500.

Lawrence was so involved in bull riding that the sport turned into his career, making it the only job he has ever held - something he would prefer over being a bullfighter any day.

Bullfighters proved to be a rider's best friend, and he admits he would never switch places with them.

"They didn't want us to get hurt, they'd get hurt before we would."

Bullfighters were a lifesaver, but nor did the two groups ever swap roles. Throughout his time competing he says he never saw a fighter switch to riding, or vice versa.

But nowadays, Lawrence seldom visits the rodeo grounds, but he says he doesn't mind because he had his time, and he hung up his spurs when he felt ready.

"Once you're done, you're done; you seem to know when you've had enough," he explained.

NORM HAYNES

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

After over four decades on the job, it would be easy to expect Norm Haynes' voice to have some reservation or self-doubt when discussing his decision to retire.

But it doesn't.

The personable Haynes, 76, is a proud father, and grandfather, and with 41 years under his belt as head judge at Rangeland Derby, he's decided to shift gears and spend more time at his Didsbury-area home.

"The Calgary Stampede treated me super—everyone did. And I hope I treated them the same way," he says.

As a young man, Haynes wasn't just busy with horses, he also made an impact on the ice, playing semi-pro hockey for the Calgary Buffaloes.

Reflecting, Haynes remembers that many of his teammates and opponents from those days took the next step to the big leagues.

"Most of them went NHL, I went cowboy," he laughs.

While Haynes' time as head judge with Rangeland Derby spanned 41 years, his passion for chuckwagon races dipped deeper into his history.

His enjoyment for the sport started while watching his father compete.

"I've been to most chuckwagon races in Calgary since I was probably six-years-old," he explains.

At 12, Haynes worked as a barn boy at the Calgary Stampede, but it wasn't until three years later that he was offered his first true opportunity.

"They were short an out- rider and asked me if I'd fill in, and I say 'oh yeah,'" Haynes grins.

"I must have been pretty good, because I was hired on full-time next year."

Haynes rode for 15 years and won it 11 times, always riding stove.

"In those days our stoves were 45 pounds, and now they're eight—so it's quite a difference."

After an accident that saw Haynes get run over in the backstretch of a race, he began plying his trade as a judge with an independent chuckwagon organization from northern Saskatchewan for two years.

Haynes says the transition to judge wasn't a difficult one.

"I read the rules," he says.

After that, Haynes was hired as head judge for Rangeland Derby.

"I made a lot of changes," he recalls.

One of which included changing the stove rack from being almost on the ground to being placed in the wagon.

"...Nineteen horses would break their legs, and I used to try and get that changed. When I got to be head judge, I said 'this is going to happen.'"

The old racetrack in Calgary was half a mile long and included horse races during the same time as the rodeo.

Haynes says dust was a definite problem.

"It was so dusty that when you're facing the south...and you're going up the backstretch, you couldn't see anything. I often thought how dumb I was to be doing this. That's why horses stepped in the stove rack and had so many accidents."

Barrel settings were another switch that Haynes was behind.

"When you'd come through the track, you'd have to make such a sharp turn at the bottom barrels, so many guys were tipping over. The crowd loved it, but it was hard on the drivers and hard on the horses," he said, of the decision to push the top barrel down, so the driver would approach it squarely.

From his work in chuckwagons, Haynes' home should be filled with memorabilia, but it isn't.

The cowboy's face curves into a smile, "all my stuff I've gotten over the years, I give to my kids and grandchildren. I can't see the sense in it sitting at my place and nobody ever seeing it."

Now into his retirement, Haynes, who calls Kelly Sutherland the best driver he's ever seen, says he'll continue to be a fan of the sport.

STOVE MAN — Chuckwagons have been a life's passion for Norm Haynes, who has retired from his position as head judge of the Calgary Stampede's Rangeland Derby.

Fight night in Olds!

BY ANDREW WILD
Didsbury Review

Plenty of people tried to prove they were tough enough, but at the end of the night only 10 fighters could claim to be kings of the ring.

A total of 55 fighters from around Alberta and points beyond took part in the So You Wanna Fight event Saturday night at the Olds Sportsplex.

Adding to the rock-em, sock-em atmosphere was an enthusiastic crowd of almost 2,000 spectators, according to organizers.

Promoter Don Buckner said the event went quite well from an organizational standpoint with positive feedback from the groups that took part in the event.

"We were really happy with the way things went," Buckner explained. "We had not one issue inside the venue."

He credited the Town of Olds with being good to work with in terms of securing the facility and providing logistics.

Inside the ring things went well for a few local participants.

Sundre resident Greg McMullen took the title in the 155 lb. and under boxing event while Didsbury's Lee Ackerman took the top spot in the 156 to 175 lb. Mixed Martial Arts division. Olds resident Jeremy Mattheis came second in the 156 to 175 lb. boxing division, losing a unanimous decision to Chris Durette of Wainwright.

A rock-solid power puncher, Durette had knocked out both of his opponents to reach the final while Mattheis had a unanimous decision and a TKO on his way to the fight.

Ackerman took his division over Jonathan Lobay in a split decision that saw the Beiseker fighter deducted two points for illegal blows.

McMullen secured his division title when Miles Valiquette of Carvel withdrew from the final.

Other winners included Harvey Moosomin of Rocky Mtn. House in the 155 lb. and under MMA; Jonny Sheppard of Edmonton in the 176 to 200 lb. boxing; Shawn Stevenson of Canmore in the 176 to 200 lb MMA; Vince Gouda of Rocky Mtn. House in the youth 155 and under MMA; Colbey Dietrich of Didsbury in the youth 176 to 200 lb. boxing; Ryan Fortin of Wetaskiwin in the 201 and over MMA; Will Tribiger of Innisfail in the 201 and over boxing.

Buckner said the success of the event this year has them contemplating a return for next year.

"We've had lots of people (from Olds) ask us about sponsoring next year," he said.

Growing Forward 2008 Advance Payments Program Federal Assistance to the Livestock Sector

Through the Advance Payments Program (APP), producers can get repayable cash advances to help improve their cash-flow.

As part of a national action plan to help hog and cattle producers, improvements have been made to the APP for 2008 to give livestock producers easier access to cash advances, including:

- Removing the requirement for livestock producers to use a Business Risk Management (BRM) program as security for a cash advance and allowing producers to use only inventory as security. Producers are still required to participate in an eligible BRM program to get a cash advance.
- Declaring that a state of severe economic hardship exists for the cattle and hog sectors so that emergency advances of up to $400,000 are available to eligible producers for the 2008-09 production period.

To apply for the 2008 APP, contact a participating producer organization by visiting agr.gc.ca/app or call 1-888-346-2511.

Dragons prepare for second season

Local football league expands

BY JOSH SKAPIN
Didsbury Review

A Didsbury-based community football project is ready to grow.

In its inaugural season, the Mountain View nine-man tackle football league, which took form with two teams last season, has announced the addition of a third member.

When the league launches its 2008 campaign this August, the Didsbury Dragons and Carstairs Tigers, will be joined by a Sundre club that is yet to be named.

Unlike hockey or baseball where you move up, in this league the players will play together for years. It will be great for all the kids. And it will be a great way to get in shape for hockey season, the Sundre club's organizer Garrett Dichrow told the Sundre Round Up.

Dragons manager and league founder, Duke Moreau says the schedule will expand to four teams when a club from Caroline enters the mix in 2009.

And we're still trying to get some more teams involved, said Moreau, noting Crossfield as a potential destination.

Moreau says having a league with at least four teams is important, but the biggest challenge they're presently facing is finding people to organize the teams in each town.

The participants are there, but we need someone to take the bull by the horns.

The Dragons are slated to enter Spring camp, which focuses on drills, learning plays, and proper positioning, at the end of this month.

Moreau forecasts the Dragons will boast 25 to 30 local youth this year.

Mark Lefebvre is confirmed to return as head coach, with Doug Wilson confirmed as one of his assistants.

Last season, in a schedule that only involved the two teams, the Dragons went undefeated against their rivals to the south.

The Dragons participated in a hotdog sale fundraiser at the Didsbury Show and Shine on Saturday, and are set to host another at AG Foods on May 28.

Safe homes, safe communities

The Royal Canadian Mounted Police is the Canadian national police service and an agency of the Ministry of Public Safety Canada.

The RCMP is unique in the world since it is a national, federal, provincial and municipal policing body. The Force provides a total federal policing service to all Canadians and policing services under contract to the three territories, eight provinces (except Ontario and Quebec), more than 190 municipalities, 184 Aboriginal communities and three international airports.

Under the Provincial Police Service agreement, the RCMP provides policing services to approximately one fifth of Alberta's population. Additionally, many of Alberta's municipalities contract with the RCMP under the Alberta Police Act.

Municipalities with a population exceeding 5,000 are required to address their policing needs.

Alberta's policing priorities include: safe communities, aboriginal policing, and serious and violent crime.

Each of the provincial policing priorities in Alberta overlap with one or more of the strategic priorities of the RCMP nationally. Together, all of the efforts both provincially and nationally support the goal of 'Safe Homes, Safe Communities.'

As a regular member of the RCMP, members play an important role in ensuring the safety and security of those in the community they serve. Responsible for enforcing the law and investigating crimes, regular members are role models and leaders who provide advice and guidance to people from all walks of life.

"Police Week is an important time to honour the men and women who dedicate their lives to keeping our communities safe."

STOCKWELL DAY
Minister of Public Safety

Hired for their specialized scientific, technical or administrative skills, civilian members of the RCMP provide support to front-line policing operations. They are employed within RCMP establishments in most geographical areas of Canada and are governed by the RCMP Act.

The Honourable Stockwell Day, Minister of Public Safety, commends law enforcement officers during National Police Week.

"Police Week is an important time to honour the men and women who dedicate their lives to keeping our communities safe," Day said. "Our officers face tremendous challenges every day. Canada's new government and the law enforcement community from coast to coast are committed partners in helping to ensure that police have the tools and resources they need to keep Canadians safe."

Helping your business succeed is our business.

We appreciate your service to our communities.

Concrete Services

THERE'S NO
ALTERNATIVE TO CONCRETE

Concrete is the basement building material with all the advantages.

It's a proven performer. Rugged Tough, Durable. A concrete basement will never burn or rot.

And concrete is safe. Quality controlled, concrete needs no toxic chemicals which may be hazardous to building occupants.

Concrete is an energy-wise choice. A concrete basement needs little heat or airconditioning. And concrete walls are easily insulated.

Economically, concrete is a good investment. A concrete basement will add years of life to the foundation and considerable dollars to the resale value of your building.

Add up the advantages. There's simply no alternative to quality

Westcott Community 'thrives'

Just recently the Westcott community Hall held their Annual meeting. We enjoyed food, drinks and a silent auction. We would like to thank the following people who donated to the hall for auction and everyone that purchased the wonderful items. For the past 2 years we have donated a sum of the proceeds to STARS and this year we raised $1,300 and will be donating half.

A few things on the agenda were Fred and Lucy Newsome have left the board after 35 long dedicated years to the community. Lucy and Fred will be greatly missed.

Stu Klinck President of the board presented the Newsomes with a painting from local artist Gail Kohut for all their hard work.

Lucy Newsome and Pat Crothers stepped down from the board. This opened up three new spots for others. The board now consists of these individuals:
Stu Klinck-President
Gary Griffiths-Vice President
Ora Findley-Treasurer
Cherie Plamping-

Directors
Shawna Brassard-Directors
Sarah Konschuh -Directors
New Members are: JP Trottier, Tina Johnston, and Shannon Konschuh.
We had a full house at the annual community meeting and made a lot of progress for the coming year. If you would like to join the Community please call Stu Klinck at 335-4069.

There are always different events happening at the Community Hall. Our next is the School's out picnic which is held at the end of June.

Westcott Coffee Ladies a growing community:

Coffee Morning is once a month with the "Gals" around the community. Each lady, mother, daughter, sisters, grandmas, friend, takes a turn in hosting a coffee get together at Westcott hall. It starts at 10:00a.m and goes to about 12 noon. Treats and snacks for everyone, coffee and or tea, whichever is your flavour. Juice and milk for kids, games and crafts for fun. The community supplies toys for the children and social time for the mothers, young and old. If you would like to be added to the coffee morning list please contact Shannon Konschuh at 335-8669.

Registration for MIDWAY KINDERGARTEN and MIDWAY PLAYSCHOOL for the 2008-2009 school year.

Midway Kindergarten and Playschool are privately run and held in a classroom of the Midway Community School. Midway is located 20 km east of the QE2 Highway, northeast of Carstairs and southeast of Didsbury.

Enjoy SMALL CLASS SIZES & INDIVIDUALIZED TEACHER ATTENTION on a daily basis with an excellent pupil/teacher ratio!

As the classes are housed in the Midway school, we have access to an incredible green space, gymnasium, indoor skating rink next door, up-to-date playground and library. The kindergarten students are frequently invited to join the other grades at Midway in activities and special events throughout the year, including field trips with Grades 1 & 2! Kindergarten runs 2-3 full days a week, Monday, Wednesday and sometimes Fridays, and Playschool runs 1-2 half days a week, Tuesday and possibly Thursdays. Busing is available through Chinook's Edge School Division for any child living within the busing boundaries for kindergarten and up.

We are currently looking into offering a before and after school program at Midway!

There will be a kindergarten Orientation day on Wednesday, June 18 for next year's students. The day will begin at 8:30 am and last until 12:30 pm. Parents/Guardians will need to send a lunch for their child. Transportation not provided that day.

To register or for more information, please contact Jennifer at 335-9182 or the Midway School at 337-2888.
